TAKEN ON TRUST.

BY MARY ANNE DICKENS AND KATHERINE WILSON. CHAPTER XVII.—(Continued.) "What a man! What a man!" she exclaimed, as she looked at the man who had just been taken on trust. "What a man! What a man!" she exclaimed, as she looked at the man who had just been taken on trust.

THE NORTHCOLE LEADER, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1898.

There is a serious moment of decision in the life of every man. It is a moment when the soul is at the point of departure, and the man must choose between the path of duty and the path of pleasure. It is a moment when the soul is at the point of departure, and the man must choose between the path of duty and the path of pleasure.
