STRAY LEAVES. From the Diary of an Old Northcote Boy.

WALKS THROUGH OLD JERUSALEM. (Continued.)

The mosque of Omar is octagonal, each side is about 70 feet in length, and a more graceful dome than that on the building could not be found.

At present the rock is surrounded by an iron palisade, and stands up above the level of the pavement some 4 ft. 9 in. at its highest point.

The stone floor near the entrance is a block of wood into which are cut three nails, but these are removed.
