I bought a lovely razor, And tried it on my chin, It shaved me well whilst shaving, And tore away the skin; It put me to such torture, That I scratched with awful pain I vowed and vowed I'd never Not have shaved again. My beard grew long and longer, It troubled me each day, I had a bilious fit, and I looked just like a bear; I was worse than any monkey, With my ragged crop of hair. As I lay in bed one night, I was wakened by a noise, And I quickly tried the razor Upon my upper lip. As I by shave it glided, And tried it on my chin, In an instant on my visage I'd not a single hair.
The razors made by Woolhouse Are really made to shave, If once you try their action, For more than you'll crave, In Melbourne nothing to boast them, I'm sure you ever be found, If you seek in every quarter, For many miles around. If your razors should get blunted And shaving give you pain, Go straight away to Woolhouse, Who'll put them right again; When shaving will be pleasant, You'll really agree. If you buy the best from Woolhouse, Who well has treated me, Since then I go to Woolhouse, My razors for to buy. None others here in Melbourne Such a large supply! All sorts and kinds in stock there You certain are to seek. Their shops are found by any Wise seek along Bourke Street.

This Beautiful Cot only 43s.
When you consider that most of Baby's time is spent in his cot, that he is growing, growing all the time, the nature and construction of his bed will assume an important place in your thoughts.
Is it large enough so that he can stretch at full length?
Is it soft and yielding so as to provide a natural support for his body?
Is it so constructed so as to save undue exertion when putting baby in and taking baby out of his cot?
All these questions require to be answered, and they can be most satisfactorily answered by purchasing a "Clausen" Cot, for it most completely fulfills all the requirements of a PERFECT COT.
The one illustrated is a typical example of "Clausen" Cot value: Beautifully made, nicely enamelled in black, has spring wire mattress attached, also drop sides; size 4ft. x 6ft. and only 43/-.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Love Out of Leash.

The light in the hall shone across his face. I remember how the muscles of the jaw stood out, how he looked at me in the eyes and grew calm as I saw the madness of his rage and realized the cause.

"King," said I, quietly, "I am not the knave you choose to think; neither am I exactly the fool you might wish to believe. Take time to learn the truth before you judge, and when you have, I'll talk to you."

I passed him. At the library door I paused and looked in. I heard Donna and King talking. King was saying, "What do you know about the cigarettes?"

"Why, the cigarettes Mr. King found in the attic," she answered, looking at me as if she were waiting for me to say something.

"Oh," said I again. "King found cigarettes, too, did he? So did I. In the attic, did you say?"

"What kind were they?" I asked, smiling.

"They're a kind that is called Peach-erino," she said.

"I see. I found one yesterday morning in the path at the side gate. Our guest smokes that, doesn't he?"

"What do you mean?" she asked. "I don't know what it means," she answered. "Nobody seems to. Mr. King found it yesterday afternoon after he got back here, hunting about."

"I see," said I. "Is there any way from the attic into the front hall?"

"Why, no, sir, direct."

"Isn't, eh? Well, it's a mystery still, then, eh?"

"Yes," she said.

"As she spoke she rose. Someone was at the door, and I looked up. King was standing on the porch. It was Donna.

"For an instant my cup of satisfaction was full, but almost immediately it was dashed. King was with her. They came forward together. The girl almost ran to the side of my bed.

"Dan Randall!" she cried. "You were here! You were on the roof and you never told me!"

I laughed, and from my soul I thanked the man who had wronged me. King could not believe it. "No, no, no," he cried. "You were here! You were on the roof and you never told me!"

"Oh, you're coming to again, are you, young man?" was the doctor's first words.

"I have had a knock-out?" I asked faintly.

"Come near being worse than that," he said gravely. "You are remarkably strong."

"Yes," said I, remembering. "How did I feel?"

"The shoulder wound is not serious. The bullet in your side cut deep. I don't know how much trouble it's going to make you."

"Not much," answered him. "It didn't hurt enough."

"He smiled grimly. "You fellows of giant proportions don't know when you're hurt."

"But I know. I have always been able to distinguish the shallow from the deep injury by the feel of the wound."

"And Miss Philbrick?" I asked.

"She is not hurt. It was your blood—close to your heart's blood, young fellow—that was the danger."

"His words went deeper than he knew."

"How could they catch you so low in the side, over the back of the neck, as he asked me, and his look down upon me was queer."

"I was standing up," I said.

"While Donna was coming out?"

"Yes," I answered. "She will tell you all about it."

"She has," he said. "But she did not know that I had not cried out. Her explanation of his face changed slowly, and he regarded me with a new look in his eyes. 'She didn't know you were hurt,' he added gravely.

"Of course," I said. "Don't tell them more than you have to. I can get up to-morrow."

"You cannot. You will be still ill in a week, at the best."

"I stared at him. I would not let it be so. I would not be crippled."

"I laughed. "Do you think I'm going to be cut out of the game like this?" I asked, resentfully.

"He did not answer my question. He put another instead. "When did you last eat?"

"I passed to think. I had not thought of food for some days. I remembered gradually. "Yesterday noon," I said, and grinned at him.

"I ought as much. Donna has not eaten since breakfast. Did you two men starve?"

"I felt a pang of compunction. I had forgotten to eat."

"But," said the doctor, "the girl has eaten. You must eat. You have not, and what's more, you've lost some quarts of blood. I should judge by your clothing. I think even you are not content to rest awhile and recuperate now."

"He turned to the housekeeper, and she came forward, smiling.

"Do you feel any better?" she asked, kindly, and reached to straighten my pillow with a truly motherly touch.

"Yes," said I, "I am all right."

"I did not see the necessity of questioning the doctor or the servants about the things I most wished to know, so lay rather silent, only acquiescing to the proposals they made for my comfort."

"Truth to tell, I had a feeling of languor and willingness to rest. But a fever burned in my heart. I longed with unexpressed desire to see the doctor and to assure myself with my own eyes that she was safe and none the less to have her hand on my forehead as she came through together. But I could not ask for her."

"I accepted the proposal that I should sit in a chair and read, and put on the cap. I had no notion that she was not Hal. Neither had anyone else—except Mr. King."

It was. She found it in that box, a package wrapped in paper. "Oh," said I, and was silent, while a new course of thought came swiftly into my brain.

"And that makes a new clue to the queer mystery of the cigarettes."

"The cigarettes?" she asked. "What do you know about the cigarettes?"

"Why, the cigarettes Mr. King found in the attic," she answered, looking at me as if she were waiting for me to say something.

"Oh," said I again. "King found cigarettes, too, did he? So did I. In the attic, did you say?"

I longed with unexpressed desire to see the doctor and to assure myself with my own eyes that she was safe and none the less to have her hand on my forehead as she came through together. But I could not ask for her."

CHAPTER XXV.

A Ghost That Smoked.

It seemed that the lapse of an instant had opened my eyes once more, this time to the face of the doctor and heard him say, "What do you know about the cigarettes?"

"No," said I, clearly as I could. "No, I'm all right."

"The girl was standing by the foot of the bed, where she was King and Mrs. Griggs, all evidently called by alarm from her. And distress was written on her face.

"See here," he assured her, and smiled at her. "I would have given worlds to call back the last moment of my consciousness and have her three answers. But she was beyond my reach now, and the doctor's orders, when he had looked a moment longer at me, were sharp and peremptory.

"And all that I was saying after he got back here, hunting about."

"I see," said I. "Is there any way from the attic into the front hall?"

"Why, no, sir, direct."

"Isn't, eh? Well, it's a mystery still, then, eh?"

"Yes," she said.

"As she spoke she rose. Someone was at the door, and I looked up. King was standing on the porch. It was Donna.

"For an instant my cup of satisfaction was full, but almost immediately it was dashed. King was with her. They came forward together. The girl almost ran to the side of my bed.

"Dan Randall!" she cried. "You were here! You were on the roof and you never told me!"

I laughed, and from my soul I thanked the man who had wronged me. King could not believe it. "No, no, no," he cried. "You were here! You were on the roof and you never told me!"

"Oh, you're coming to again, are you, young man?" was the doctor's first words.

"I have had a knock-out?" I asked faintly.

"Come near being worse than that," he said gravely. "You are remarkably strong."

"Yes," said I, remembering. "How did I feel?"

"The shoulder wound is not serious. The bullet in your side cut deep. I don't know how much trouble it's going to make you."

"Not much," answered him. "It didn't hurt enough."

"He smiled grimly. "You fellows of giant proportions don't know when you're hurt."

"But I know. I have always been able to distinguish the shallow from the deep injury by the feel of the wound."

"And Miss Philbrick?" I asked.

"She is not hurt. It was your blood—close to your heart's blood, young fellow—that was the danger."

"His words went deeper than he knew."

"How could they catch you so low in the side, over the back of the neck, as he asked me, and his look down upon me was queer."

"I was standing up," I said.

"While Donna was coming out?"

"Yes," I answered. "She will tell you all about it."

"She has," he said. "But she did not know that I had not cried out. Her explanation of his face changed slowly, and he regarded me with a new look in his eyes. 'She didn't know you were hurt,' he added gravely.

"Of course," I said. "Don't tell them more than you have to. I can get up to-morrow."

"You cannot. You will be still ill in a week, at the best."

"I stared at him. I would not let it be so. I would not be crippled."

"I laughed. "Do you think I'm going to be cut out of the game like this?" I asked, resentfully.

"He did not answer my question. He put another instead. "When did you last eat?"

"I passed to think. I had not thought of food for some days. I remembered gradually. "Yesterday noon," I said, and grinned at him.

"I ought as much. Donna has not eaten since breakfast. Did you two men starve?"

"I felt a pang of compunction. I had forgotten to eat."

"But," said the doctor, "the girl has eaten. You must eat. You have not, and what's more, you've lost some quarts of blood. I should judge by your clothing. I think even you are not content to rest awhile and recuperate now."

"He turned to the housekeeper, and she came forward, smiling.

"Do you feel any better?" she asked, kindly, and reached to straighten my pillow with a truly motherly touch.

"Yes," said I, "I am all right."

PRESTON SHIRE COUNCIL.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 15.

Present:—Crs. Braithwaite (president), Howe, Crispe, Robertson, Warr, Stanlake, Paterson, Alchin and Bricknell.

WATER EXTENSION.

The Metropolitan Board of Works wrote refusing to grant an extension of the water to Pender street, on the grounds of insufficiency of revenue.

ELECTRIC LIGHT AGREEMENT.

Mr. Robertson moved that it be forwarded on to the council's electrical engineers, with a request that they advise and make any suggestions they consider necessary.

TRAMWAY CONFERENCE.

The town clerk, Northcote, wrote forwarding minutes of tramway conference, the principal business done at which was the appointment of a sub-committee consisting of two representatives from each council to collate the necessary information.

TELEPHONE TO CRUSHER.

W. C. Howitt, town surveyor, Northcote, wrote asking if this council would join in the cost of putting a line of telephone wires down Dundas street to the crusher.

EXPERT OFFICER.

The Board of Public Health wrote stating they could see no reason for appointing A. Howes as expert officer.

LICENSES IN DISPUTE.

The Board of Public Health wrote agreeing to meet the council in conference on J. C. Hutton's (late Smith's) and Adams' licenses on the 17th inst.—Received.

LICENSE APPLICATION REFUSED.

Thos. J. Bartlett wrote applying for a noxious trade license for premises situated on the Henty sub-division, near Reservoir station. It was proposed to manufacture margarine, &c.

LAMPGLASSERS LEAVE.

A. P. Daye made application for his annual fortnight's leave, dating from that day.

ALTERING SUBDIVISION.

John McComas wrote asking leave to alter plan of the Law Oldfield subdivision by making the right-of-way at the rear of allotments facing Plenty road straight out.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Mr. Stanlake (chairman) submitted the report, recommending—1. That accounts amounting to £130 16s 7d be paid for payment—Adopted.

PUBLIC WORKS COMMITTEE.

Mr. Bricknell (chairman) submitted the report, recommending—1. That accounts amounting to £100 8s 6d be paid for payment—Adopted.

PARKS COMMITTEE.

Mr. Warr (chairman) submitted the report, recommending—1. Applications Preston G.C. and Ewerleigh G.C. for use of park for the coming season.—That the use of the park be given to the Preston G.C., the Ewerleigh G.C. to make arrangements with the Preston G.C.

their balance-sheet he noticed that Ewerleigh last year paid £2 2s for the use of the ground. The Preston club was being granted the ground for nothing, though the council had to pay for its upkeep and water and sewerage rates. He also understood that sheep were being grazed in there to the inconvenience of the public who desired to patronise or cross the park.

Mr. Warr said this was the same arrangement as in previous years, and it had always worked well. He did not anticipate that Ewerleigh would have any trouble in arranging for practices. The committee would look into the matter of the sheep.

Mr. Robertson said that the sheep had been grazed there on and off this 12 months, but nothing had been heard of it before. There was only room for one club, and it was advisable to make one club responsible.

The clause was adopted.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE.

Mr. Paterson (chairman) submitted the report, recommending—1. Letter A. Goslar, re electric light.—That Mr. Goslar be informed that the council have not yet decided to take the electric current up Charles street.—Adopted.

2. Letter, Miller and Co., re portable engine.—That the matter be having a trial run as soon as possible be left in the hands of Mr. Wilding and the president.—Adopted.

3. Mrs. Dalgligh's application for premises in Clifton grove to be registered as a private hospital.—That same be granted, subject to the approval of the B. Bd. of Health.

4. That the rate collector be empowered to write off arrears of rates on sold properties amounting to £48/17/4.—Adopted.

FINANCE.

The treasurer reported that the receipts for the fortnight had amounted to £247/16/4, and that the present balance was £99/1/11.

As there was a Cr. balance of over £600 in Special Improvement Loan No. 3, Cr. Crispe moved that the matter be referred to the finance committee with a view of buying in some of the debentures.

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

1. Suggested the advisability of going into the matter of a valuation for year 1913-14.—Referred to finance committee, on the motion of Cr. Robertson.

2. Council will require to fix sanitary charge for the year.—Referred to committee of the whole.

3. In subdivision Gilbert road 7 foot easement was required at back of allotments 29.—Referred to works committee.

ORDINARY BUSINESS.

Mr. Paterson moved that the matter of allowing the churchwarden to be referred to the finance committee.

Mr. Warr moved that the matter of asphalt on the north side of Wood street, from Plenty road to Wood street, be considered with next year's estimates. Cr. Stanlake seconded.—Carried.

Mr. Crispe moved that the matter of getting more suitable notes be referred to the committee of the whole.

Mr. Robertson moved that the matter of the metalling of Spring street (in order that other improvements there might be carried out) be considered with the estimates. Cr. Bricknell seconded.—Carried.

Mr. Paterson moved that a notice be issued of cleaning—some 5 or 6 yds.—be cleaned in Frasers street. He would like to see it extended.

Mr. Robertson moved that a letter be sent to the Railway Department protesting against the gatekeeper's lodge being erected over their drain at Hill street, and asking that it be removed. It was certainly a great eyesore and they had no right to put it there. He thought also that the gatekeeper's residence should be removed. It was certainly not very defying to have to go past duck and fowl pens to the principal station.

Mr. Stanlake said that there were a lot of details to be fixed up in connection with their electric lighting scheme.

A SPLENDID RECORD OF ZAM-BUK'S HEALING.

FATHER, MOTHER AND CHILD CURED OF POISONED SORES, BURNS AND INJURIES.

Absolutely proved that a pot of Zam-Buk should be kept handy in every home is provided by the experiences of the family of Mr. Patterson, of 88 Davies Street, Boulder, W.A. In a recent conversation Mrs. Patterson said:—"My husband, while working in a mine, was injured by a fall of earth. He was brought home on an ambulance stretcher, suffering intense pain and he had lost the use of his lower limbs. He agonised as if he was burning, and was confined to his bed for three months suffering great agony and distress.

"At last I asked my husband to let me rub him with Zam-Buk. We always keep a supply in the house. To this the doctor agreed, so I rubbed his back vigorously. After three applications my husband was much easier, and the awful pain had gone. We were gratified with the Zam-Buk that we decided to persevere, with the results that in practically a short time my husband was once again able to walk about. Thanks to Zam-Buk his health and strength quickly returned, and now he is quite active again.

"My little boy sat down on some red hot ashes, burning himself severely. His cries were heart-rending and the agony he suffered was frightful. Zam-Buk completely cured him.

"While opening a tin of preserves I gashed the top of my thumb, and through neglect blood-poisoning set in. The wound began to swell, and inflammation set in. The pain was excruciating and my thumb would drop in an almost unbearable manner, while water flowed freely from it. The doctor applied caustic to burn the wound, but this only made matters worse. Then he wished to amputate the top joint, but I would not hear of it. We decided to place our reliance in our old friend Zam-Buk and to cut a long story short this ointment healed the wound in an almost instant manner, and healed the wound in a wonderful fashion." All chemists and druggists supply Zam-Buk at 1/6 and 3/6.

such as the charges for current and meters, house regulations, &c., and he would move that the committee already appointed in connection with the agreement consider and report.

TENDERS.

The tender of Jan. Foley for general carting (man, horse and dray) at 1s 9d per day was accepted.

The tender of Clarke Bros for carting from the quarry at a. h. rate, ranging from 1-3 1/2 to 1s 1 1/2 per load, was accepted.

HOW THE WEAK BEAR PAIN.

According to surgical authorities, it is often extremely difficult to estimate the condition of a patient with regard to a power of standing a severe operation. Often a weak-looking individual, who looks as if he would not stand a severe operation, will stand quite as well, and vice versa. This is accounted for by the fact that a person of poor physique who has a strong life has often much more high vitality than one who looks well, but whose vitality is only a matter of time.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS.

Formerly sleep was believed to be dependent upon a state of comparative bloodlessness of the brain, and by the condition of the circulation of the blood through that organ the character and duration of sleep was held to be modified. This view is still regarded as correct by physiologists of the present day, but since physiological chemistry has thrown new light on the processes of repair and waste, it has been shown that, in addition to the circulation of the blood, the actual chemical condition of the brain cells also serves to determine the extent of sleep or wakefulness.

As the size of the blood vessels, the actual chemical condition of the brain cells also serves to determine the extent of sleep or wakefulness.

ALF NORTON renders a service that is unexcelled

It is not what we say, but what our customers are continually saying about us that forms our best advertisement.

If what we say is not quite so emphatic as the remarks of our friends, it is because we prefer to let our goods do the talking through the mouths of the purchasers.

A satisfied customer is, we know, our best advertisement.

THE NORTH-WEST OF VICTORIA.

A steady, progressive movement is the satisfactory feature of affairs generally throughout the extensive agricultural area of the north-west of Victoria. During the last two years certain conditions—climatic, financial, industrial—have had a steady influence, notably on the prices of the result of a series of particularly prosperous seasons, the price of land rose rapidly, and numerous sales were made at high figures. It is true that there has been a check, the sales have not been comparatively few, and while values have receded to some extent, confidence in the district is fully maintained. Something approaching a boom was being experienced, and it is generally agreed that the swing of the pendulum to fair and legitimate prices has had a wholesome and beneficial effect. For new mallee areas thrown open for selection, in the neighbourhood of Ouyen, the number of applicants has on every occasion exceeded the number available. Most of the men who have applied for land have been of the right stamp, and the respectable thing has been that land could not be provided for the great number of applicants. The settlement of the northern areas, the right policy is being pursued, and the quality of wheat grown is being enormously increased year by year. An essential factor in connection with this settlement is the provision of adequate water supply. A great deal has been done in this direction by the extension of the water-boring for artesian water, and the construction of dams. In the matter of cultivation and the working of the holdings, farmers have been successful over a large proportion of the mallee country which has been settled for some years, have been able to their interests. They have profited by the spread of their own knowledge, combined with their own practical experience. The Wimmera,allee and Northern districts produce over the average return of Victoria, and the aim is to increase the average return. Following is now generally recognized as being indicative in connection with the raising of heavy crops of the land is out of the question. Experience has demonstrated that well-watered land gives much better returns than land which has been merely stubbled. Mixed farming is the general practice. Sheep and lambs have proved a substantial source of income, while at the same time being a great asset to the land. There is no longer any doubt as to the importance of following to conserve moisture in the soil, a great deal of attention is being given to low rainfall in this part of the State. So impressed are farmers with the benefits of following that it forms an important part of their operations. It is realized that a large number of tests with different quantities at various stages of growth. FOOTBALL.

BOURKE-EVING ASSOCIATION FINAL.

EPHING PREMIERS.

The final match of the above association was played on the prettily situated Boreen recreation reserve on Saturday last between Epping (minor premiers) and South Yan Yean. Great interest was taken in the game, people flocking to the ground from all parts of the district. The weather conditions were ideal in every respect for a good fast game, and the playing area was in splendid condition, although a trifling dew had fallen on the grass during the night. Both sides were without a couple of prominent players, Stinson and Kelly being out of the Epping team and Edwards and Woods were absent from South Yan Yean. The loss from Andrews, the South's skipper, and his absence to take advantage of the slight breeze which favoured the pavilion goal. From the bounce play was played at the wing, where rick play predominated. A sequence of free kicks against Epping soon had their back line hard at work. This attack was beaten off, but South came again and put on a couple of behinds. Play was then transferred to the other end, and Nebel got rather a doubtful mark right in front of goal and had no difficulty in registering the major points for Epping. From the bounce Epping again attacked, and South's defenders were hard on their heels. Mr. McEachern, who was playing well. The ball was in the centre of the ground when the ball proclaimed quarter time. On change of ends Mr. Moore was following in place of Seddon for Epping, and soon made his presence felt in the ruck. His hitting out to little Perry, the rover, was very fine. It was noticeable that while the ball was in the air Epping were marking and playing better than their opponents, but in the line play they were even. Whilst play was in front of the pavilion Andrews collared and sent the ball well up, where Gilligan, in going for a mark, was pulled, and from the penalty kick scored a nice goal. After this to the end of the quarter play was mostly of the scrumby order. Epping were leading by 2 points, and from the bounce play was played at the wing, where rick play predominated. South at this stage appeared to be tiring, but Epping were fighting it out well. Tending final quarter was played at a great pace, and it was here that Maine and McClelland, two of the fastest men in the competition, were seen at their best. The marking, kicking and running with the ball by McClelland was one of the features of the game. These two men, with Perry and Gair, were repeatedly sending it to the forward lines, but their good work was nullified by ever-eagerness of that division. Instead of opening out the lines and going for the ball together. Towards the end it was seen that South were a beaten team, but they struggled gallantly on, and about 5 minutes before time when they had the leather in the Epping territory, an unfortunate accident happened to Gilligan. Whilst running from the wing with the ball he was pulled into collision with an opponent, and had one of his ribs broken. The last few minutes Epping were sent forwarding and Brophy picked up the ball and had a flying shot, but the ball was touched in transit and only a behind was registered. Just as the ball was kicked off the final half rang and Epping had won the premiership for the first time since joining the Association.

Excited supporters rushed the ground and carried off shoulder high some of the leading players, and after the game a number of South Yan Yean players visited the Epping dressing room and heartily congratulated the victors on their success. There was no doubt the better team on the day won. The Epping players were always faster to the ball than their opponents, and they showed marked superiority in the air. The only department in which South were equal to them was in the ruck. The forward work on each side was very weak, the players in that division evidently suffering from over eagerness, always rushing for instead of opening out and waiting for it to be played to them.

It is difficult to say who was the best man of the winning side, but there were four players who stood out above all others—Gambier, Perry, O'Meara, and McClelland. The quartet were playing excellent football and they can safely be regarded the champions of the match. Of the others, Brian O'Meara, Maine, Nebel, Pratt and Blair all played well. On the losing side Gilligan, Giddens and P. Nelson were probably the best men, but they were splendidly assisted by Andrews, Proud, Owens, Monahan and McEachern. The game was umpired by Pattinson, of the Victorian Junior Football Association.

ROOM FOR AMBULANCE CLASS.

Mr. Webster recently wrote to the Northcote town council asking for the use of a room for the purpose of holding a first-aid class under the auspices of the St. John Ambulance Association. The application came from the Rev. P.A.F.S., but it was stated that the class was going to all.

Mr. Redmond was asked to know if the council was going to keep it world. Some years ago the council decided to establish a sub-centre here, and granted the use of a room in the premises which should be bound by that. It was just a continuation of the work.

The mayor said it did not matter what the council decided to do. It was just a continuation of the work. Mr. Redmond moved that a room be granted free of charge. There could not be truer charity than to prepare men and women to alleviate the sufferings of others in case of accident.

Mr. Plant pointed out that the original application was from a public meeting. This came in March, 1912, and everyone would not care to join. Mr. Redmond seconded the motion, remarking that it did not matter what the council decided to do. It was just a continuation of the work.

THANKS.

A poet's life you must allow. It is not made up of beer and skittles. For by the wringing of his hands, He cometh hardly by his wittles; Too few the cheques for 10/6. He earns less helplessness than kicks, While every clerk his art belittles. The poet's wage I do avow, Sirs, Will scarcely keep a man in trousers. Ill clad, before the bins he squirms. Till, desperate, he craves a sum of That, couched in supplicating terms, May bring him in a coat or bonnet; (And weariness indeed at times O'neave come to his aid, and bring, Enlist the Muse to win him trousers. One gift at last the gods concede, 'Twere reckless folly had he spun it. 'Twill help us all our cause to plead. We thank the kilijoy crowd that earned it. We thank the kilijoy who made a hit The moment that he thought of it; And into circulation turned it; Who when he coined the title "Wowers" Gave every bard a rhyme for trousers. WILL W. ROCK.
