THE COBBERS' CLUB

Dear Cobbers. Well Christmas isn't far away now. I suppose you're all having exams, but they'll soon be over, and then come the long holidays. Won't you have a wonderful time! We went bathing last Saturday. It was good, and the Pets did enjoy the beach. Only Jacko came in. Fluffy built sand castles and bridges and gardens with shells and t-trees in them. The Tortoise doesn't like sand, so she didn't go. Well, Cobbers, good luck in your exams. Love from Uncle Phil and THE PETS.

WINGS OF FANCY

Chapter II.—The Old Bush Prophet.

(By Tinkle Toes)

I was caught up by the bustle of the ways of the city, for I had taken upon me the duty of knowing city methods to do things my own way, and so I could not accept his invitation to sit and eat and talk of eternal things. So I waved him a "Cherio" and made the sign he understood and went off. He carefully looked round to see that none of the invisible imps of mischief had spoiled his sitting place.

Glancing back again I had gone on a few yards, I saw him munching his crust with an enjoyment that was oblivious of all his surroundings.

I passed him several times in city streets after that first meeting, and I saw him eating in an underground restaurant run by eager-hearted ladies to win money for the support of missionaries.

When I left the restaurant to pay my dues at the counter, I found him there, leaning to the lady's attendant.

He saw me as I paid my bill, and again the smile that was true loveliness gleamed from the middle blue eyes.

To test him I made an old world sign with my hand. It was a brushing movement from right to left across my nose as if I were sweeping away a troublesome fly. He responded at once.

His hand went up instantly to the protective shield, and he whispered almost silently, "Do that no more, brother; an evil spirit fled from thee to me, and I am not immune. It now torments my spine and I shall die."

Being in the shape and form of a careless man, I laughed in scorn and said, "There are no spirits of evil to touch the modern man, and they are not. Take the word and they are powerless."

He was terrified and muttered, "I tremble in fear. Do not make that action again for I am all the spirits that injure me."

Then I knew that he had yielded himself to fear of the wicked spirits, and although he carried the scriptures always with him in their original languages his life was a terror. And yet he lived to bless men.

BIRTHDAYS

All the Cobbers, Uncle Phil and the Pets wish John Cordell (Nov. 27), Stanley Hauser (Nov. 28), Violet Whipp (Nov. 30), and Audrey Taylor (Dec. 1), the very happiest of birthdays.

OUR MAIL BAG

140 Elm St., Northcote. Dear Uncle Phil.—Thank you for the 2/6 which I got on Saturday. I banked it. Our kitchen Punch is all cold and died on Sunday. Judy is all right, and likes to sleep in my cap. (GOOD) Kel Bensley.

I'm so sorry Punch died, but you have lots of other pets. Still, kittens are the best of pets. Judy must be tiny to be able to sleep there. Love from the Pets.

2 Kane St., West Preston. Dear Uncle Phil.—I went to the Zoo on Saturday and had a ride in the donkey cart, two rides on the train, and one ride on the elephant.

The monkeys are funny and they are always doing mischief. One of them had an orange and it was spilling the juice all over itself. One of the bears sat up and held its feet in its paws. The birds looked very funny standing in the water. Their long legs looked like sticks. (GOOD) Truda Stevens.

43 Bridge St., Northcote. Dear Uncle Phil.—Last Saturday we went with our teacher to St. Peter's, in Melbourne. While we were there some very interesting plays and dialogues were given, such as Livingstone and Stanley, who went as missionaries to South Africa, and what happened to them. Then the distribution of prizes was made by the president, and I received a prize which is very nice. We have been having examinations at school, the results for this year, and we are just waiting for the results. It will soon be Christmas now, and then Father Xmas will be in the shops. (GOOD) Betty Ryan.

Marjorie Worfolk.—Do you read very much, Marj? That is one of the ways of learning to understand big words. If you can't see anyone at the time you see the word, write it down and either look up a dictionary or ask the meaning.

Ed. Bridger.—Please call for your prize on or after Monday. Les, Beecher.—I thought I asked you to call, Les. The prize has been here for the past week. Please call as early as you can. (GOOD) Marjorie Hartnell.

Mavis Antonsen.—Welcome, Mavis, to the Cobbers and Birthday Clubs. What do you do all day? Have you a cubby-house? Love from the Pets. Marie Connelly.—Welcome, Marie, to the club. I would like you to send me something interesting for the Corner. Jacko thinks you could write something about him.

CONTRIBUTIONS.

A COUNTRY MAN AND AN ASS As a country man was grazing his ass an alarm came that the enemy had entered their village. The poor man, very frightened, called to his ass to carry him away as fast as he could scamp. "For," said he, "we shall be taken else." "Well!" quoth the ass, "what if I were taken? I have one pack-saddle upon my back already. Will they clap another atop of that, d'ye think? I can be taken or a slave wherever I am, so that, taken or not taken, 'tis all a case to me." (GOOD) Con Power

AN ABSENT-MINDED MAN I had an absent-minded friend— He was a comical one. He did many things right From dawn till set of sun.

I TOOK HIM OUT TO TONIC DAY.

(That day I'll never forget!)

He spread a trumpet on his knees And munched his sorviette! He ate a glass of lemonade; He drank a piece of cake; Then, shaking both his eyes at once, He said, "My mistake."

Said I, "We'd best be going home." He couldn't find his hat. He crammed the milk jug on his head And walked away in that!

One day he thought he'd cook an egg. The pot was on the boil; Said he, "My watch shall time it well 'I'll see it does not spoil!"

He timed it with the greatest care, But found, with grief and pain, The egg was safely in his hand— He'd boiled his watch and chain!

He had a stick of chocolate, Which brought him such disgrace, For when he went to shave himself He rubbed it on his face!

His thoughts were far away the while He rubbed it up and down, Until he cried, "Great at Jacko! This soap has turned me brown!"

Let's soap he washed it off at last And grew a better brain. I never met his like before And trust I shan't again. (GOOD) Roy Clarkson.

A HARD BED

Here's an example from a butterfly. That's a rough, hard rock happy can lie; Friendless and all alone On this unsoftened stone.

Now, let my bed be hard; no care I'll make my joy like this small but tenderly. Whose happy heart has power To make a stone a flower. (GOOD) Hazel Norris.

Baa, baa, black sheep, have you any wool? Yes, Mary, I have three bags full. One for my master and one for my mistress, and I have one for the little boy who lives down the lane. (GOOD) Jack Power

COBBERS

When the morning's young and fresh, Fragrant, still, and new, Shining both his eyes at once, Are the cobbers, set with dew. I often wonder what they are, Those cobbers sheer and bright, As I see them, near and far, But in morning's early light. (GOOD) S. E. Singleton

SAFETY FIRST

Danger—if you forget it you may live to regret it. A minute's consideration often saves hours of misery.

Don't carry your life in your hands—It might slip through your fingers. When you chance your luck, you chance your life.

Death is too permanent to be played with. (GOOD) C. Webb.

HOW TO STUDY THE MOON

Not many of you get the chance to look through a telescope at the moon. There is a very easy way of getting an enlarged view of its shining surface. All you will need is a hand mirror and a candle.

When the sky is clear and the moon is full, go right out-of-doors. Hold your mirror so that the moon is reflected in the glass. Now bring your magnifying glass to bear on the reflection, moving this up and down so as to get a sharp focus. You will find in this way you can get a fine enlarged view of the moon. (GOOD) Ed Bridger.

HIDDEN ANIMALS

You must go at four o'clock. Let us have a picnic at St. Kilda. He will go to his death or seek pardon.

She came looking like a princess. Answers: Goat, cat, horse, camel. (GOOD) Mavis Antonsen.

BELL, THE MAN WHO INVENTED THE TELEPHONE He was born in 1847 in Edinburgh, and he was well educated and taught elocution. Early in life he met a man who was interested in music and he soon formed an idea for musical telegraph. He spent most of his time in study, but his health broke down. There he taught music to the deaf, and dumb, but he still experimented with his idea without success. He received much help with money from a man named Lord Kelvin. After months' work he and his friend, Watson, then made some success because they were able to hear some sound at the end of the wire. With more trial he perfected it. Now, by means of the telephone, we can hear a conversation. (Next week: James Watt, the first man to build a steam engine.) (GOOD) Marjorie Worfolk

WORD SQUARE

A girl's name, do up boots, put on special cakes, at old name for a tax or rate, what knives should be.

A L I C E
L I N G
C E N S E
E G E D

(GOOD) Florrie Norris.

THE JINGLING BELL

In this game all the players are blind-folded except one, who carries a small bell. He moves about among the other players jingling his bell and slipping away before they can seize him. The game is very amusing and very exciting. It is often played at parties, but the blindfolded persons a "nice dance" all over the room. (GOOD) Enid Love.

TALES.

Visitor: "You've a bright little boy, sir. I'll be bound he's going to carve out a name for himself before very long." Father: "He's done that already—on our new piano." (GOOD) Marjorie Hartnell.

Little Jackie was fishing in a stream when suddenly there came a loud splash. "Hi, there!" How dare you fish in this stream? "Can't you read that notice? No fishing in these grounds?" "Yes," was Jackie's meek reply, "But please, I'm not fishing in the grounds. I'm fishing in the water." (GOOD) Lily Antonsen.

Works Doctor: "Well, what have you sent you here for?" Joe: "My deafness, sir—since morning's now." "Oh, is the deafness continuous?" "No, that's the funny part about it. I can hear it all right dinner times and knock off!"

Daphne Berchold (GOOD) Couldn't Kid Him.—Inspector: "Why did Napoleon cross the Alps?" Boy: "Ah, I got caught with that one about the chicken. He wanted to get to the other side." (GOOD) Oona Humphreys.

"I am a martyr to this terrible toothache, lad," said Jones to his friend Harry. "Do you know of any physical?" "You need no physical," replied Harry. "I had the toothache last week and when I went home my wife, to my surprise, kissed me, and, believe me, I was cured. Try it. Jones said, 'Yes, I will. Is your wife at home now?'" Jack Webb.

Hostess: "Miss Smith has no partner for the waltz. You will not mind dancing with her instead of me?" Guest: "On the contrary, I shall be delighted." (GOOD) Myra Whipp.

Mary: "I say, uncle, is it true that Nature never wastes anything?" Uncle: "Yes, Mary, quite true." Mary: "Then, what is the use of a cat having two horns when she can't even blow one?" (GOOD) Andrew Antonsen.

Bobby was reading history when he suddenly said, "What is beheaded, mother?" "Leaving your head on," she replied. After a moment Bobby remarked: "I suppose beheaded is having your feet cut off?" Teacher (to Tommy): "How many teeth have you in your mouth?" Tommy (after a pause): "Please sir, a mouthful!"

Judge: "What were you thinking of when you stole the sheep?" "I dunno. I must have been wool-gathering." (GOOD) Joyce Maes.

Two girls were talking over the wire, and both were discussing what they should wear to the coming party. In the midst of this important conversation a masculine voice interrupted asking humbly for a number. One of the girls became indignant and scornfully asked: "What line do you think you are on, anyhow?" "Well," said the man, "I am not sure, but, judging from what I have heard, I should say I was on the blue line." (GOOD) Bille Webb.

An Unfeeling Utterance.—A man lay dying. Nevertheless he desired for something to eat, and his wife asked him what he would like. "Well," said the poor fellow, "I seem to smell a ham cooking somewhere. I think I could have a bit of that." "Oh, no, John dear," said the wife, "you can't have that—that is for the funeral." (GOOD) Thelma Maes.

"Where is Athens?" "Athens? You mean Athens, don't you?" "No. The place where everything is blown to!"

A Tragedy.—Joy fun, boy gun, gun bust, boy dust. Les Stabb.

Ask your friend to stand on a chair and tell him that you could bring him down on a feather. He will most likely say that you couldn't do it. Then you go and get a sly Dutchman? One is a hollow cylinder and the other is a silly Hollander. (GOOD) Alan Love.

What is put on a table often, but but never eaten?—A pack of cards. What is the difference between an engine driver and a school master?—One minds the train and the other trains the mind. (GOOD) Pat Power.

What letters are always buzzing?—B's. Which letter do you like best on a holiday?—C. (GOOD) Con Power.

RIDDLES

Why can there never be a whole day?—Because every day begins by breaking.

What is the difference between an empty cylinder and a silly Dutchman?—One is a hollow cylinder and the other is a silly Hollander. (GOOD) Alan Love.

What is put on a table often, but but never eaten?—A pack of cards. What is the difference between an engine driver and a school master?—One minds the train and the other trains the mind. (GOOD) Pat Power.

What letters are always buzzing?—B's. Which letter do you like best on a holiday?—C. (GOOD) Con Power.

CHEERY HOME

MAKES A HAPPY FAMILY

No one can estimate the influence that environment has upon the lives of your family. Surround them with cheerfulness and happiness, and they will grow up cheerful and happy. It's one of Nature's laws. Possibly you've never thought of the natural influence the walls of your home have upon the home life of your family. Brighten them up; let them radiate cheer, health and happiness. And, possibly, too, you've never thought how little it costs to make your home so.

Here, at Bridgson's, for a nominal outlay, you can get the pick of Wallpapers—papers which will brighten up your home, which will add contentment and bring happiness.

OUR RANGE OF WALLPAPERS IS COMPLETE, INCLUDING THE LATEST PANELLING PAPERS.

Call and inspect them. The prices range to meet all needs. We shall be glad to advise you and estimate the quantity and costs, and do all within our means to make your home all that you would desire of it.
